Gastrointestinal/Hepatic Pathology Fellowship

Description: The Department of Pathology at the Rhode Island and The Miriam Hospitals has established a one-year fellowship program in Gastrointestinal Pathology. The program offers advanced training in GI, pancreatic and liver pathology. A clinical research project will be encouraged. Strong collaborative efforts with the Division of Gastroenterology and the Brown Medical School will provide excellent research opportunities. The fellow will also be expected to participate in the teaching of residents and fellows in the Department and in the teaching of Pathology and Laboratory Medicine courses.

Requirements: Applicants should have completed an AP or AP/CP residency training program. Residents who wish to use this fellowship position as a fifth year experience will also be considered. Applicants must be eligible for employment in the United States.

Applications: Murray Resnick MD, PhD, Director of Surgical and Gastrointestinal Pathology, Department of Pathology, Rhode Island Hospital, 593 Eddy Street, Providence RI 02903
