The 23rd Annual Multidisciplinary Symposium on Breast Disease

Dear Colleagues:

This is indeed a pleasure to present to you the program of the 23rd Annual Multidisciplinary Symposium on Breast Disease, which will take place February 15-18, 2018 at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in Amelia Island, Florida.

For the past 23 years, the symposium has provided a unique educational experience for those involved in breast health care. As an internationally recognized symposium, we have been fortunate to attract the most highly respected speakers to participate in the symposium every year. As in previous years, the University of Florida is excited to announce our partnership with Cedars-Sinai in California for the symposium. By combining the expertise of our world-class institutions, we will be able to provide an expanded program, covering many new exciting topics related to multidisciplinary breast health.

The program is designed to offer pre-symposium workshops, plenary sessions, case presentations and panel discussions with active participation of the audience. The speakers are recognized authorities in their specialties, with experience in presenting the most controversial aspects surrounding the spectrum of benign, premalignant and malignant breast lesions.

In addition, we are fortunate to have Dr. Larry Norton serve as our keynote speaker. Dr. Norton is a highly respected authority in breast cancer research, specifically about the mathematical understanding of tumor growth and drug resistance and toxicity. Dr. Norton is the Medical Director of the Evelyn H. Lauder Breast Center at Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center and the Norna S. Sarofim Chair in Clinical Oncology.

As always, this year's symposium will take place at one of the most beautiful resort locations in Florida. Please join us to celebrate the 23rd Anniversary of our Symposium.

We look forward to seeing you in February 15-18, 2018!

Symposium Description

The symposium provides a multidisciplinary overview of the diagnosis and treatment of all stages of breast cancer. Faculty includes experts in the fields of surgical, medical and radiation oncology, pathology, radiology, surgery, psychology, reconstructive surgery and patient advocacy. The target audience includes clinicians, specialists, health care providers and scientists involved in the care and treatment of patients with breast cancer, as well as research and education concerning this important disease.

Objectives

Upon completion of this course, participants should be able to:

- Familiarize the audience with the current state of the art breast imaging technologies for better breast cancer detection
- Clarify which modality is more likely to find invasive and noninvasive tumors
- Review the indications for imaging the axilla in the preoperative setting in the Z11 era
- Review key points in imaging the axilla in patients undergoing neoadjuvant chemotherapy
- Understand contemporary theories of cancer as it relates to carcinogenesis, prognosis, therapy and prevention
- Inform the participant of available data regarding risk factors and selection of patients for omission of radiation after lumpectomy and discuss ongoing trials addressing this issue
- Understand the rationale for pre-operative systemic therapy for breast cancer and to formulate individualized treatment and monitoring plans
- Incorporate biological and clinical trial evidence in the optimal use of endocrine therapy for breast cancer
- Review current data for accelerated partial breast irradiation and describe new and emerging techniques
- Review the recent clinical data for immune therapy in breast cancer and describe future directions
- Review an alternative approach of breast reconstruction using tissue expander or implant
- Review the available approaches and treatments in managing post operative pain in patients having mastectomy surgery
- Familiarize the audience with the range and safety of fertility preservation techniques and technologies available to breast cancer patients and survivors
- Familiarize the audience manifestations of menopause in breast cancer survivors as well as the efficacy and safety of various interventions, including hormones, hormonal analogues and manipulators and alternative therapies.
- Understand the indications for the outcomes of re-irradiation for in-breast recurrence

CME Accreditation and Credits

Accreditation: This activity has been planned and implemented in accordance with the accreditation requirements and policies of the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education through the joint providership of the University of Florida College of Medicine and Cedars Sinai. The University of Florida College of Medicine is accredited by the ACCME to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

Credit: The University of Florida College of Medicine designates this live activity for a maximum of 25.25 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits[™]. Physicians should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

Location

Amelia Island, with the historic, picturesque town of Fernandina Beach, is a hidden pearl at the tip of the South's barrier islands. Surrounded by waters teeming with fish, this deepwater port is still home to one of America's first shrimp fleets. The tranquil beauty of gnarled oaks and heron-guarded ponds flank some of America's top-rated fairways. Picturesque shops are a treasure-trove of antiques and fashion. Fine restaurants bring the sea's fresh harvest and other gourmet delights to your table. Ride a horse on the beach, work out on the tennis court, then cool down in indigo waters that invite sailing, surfing and angling.

Accommodations for Disabilities or Special Requests, including Dietary

Please notify the UF CME Office a minimum of ten working days prior to the conference so that adequate consideration may be given to your request. Special Dietary restrictions should also be submitted in advance.
